The Raphael Taubenschlag Foundation is proud to present two brand new volumes setting new trends in Nubian studies

Artur Obłuski

The Rise of Nobadia.

Social Changes in Northern Nubia in Late Antiquity
 [= JJP Supplement XX]

The author presents an innovative approach to the history of Nubia. The period covered includes the fall of Meroe and the rise of the united kingdom of Nobadia and Makuria. The emphasis is put on the analysis of social and political transformations. Obłuski seeks an explanation for the creation of a new state in the Middle Nile Valley in an area so far unexplored in Nubian studies, namely modern theories of urbanisation. He also introduces major improvements to the chronological nomenclature, implying that the periodisation of Nubian history should be based on actual political changes and not vague racial or religious criteria. Nowadays we can be certain that after the fall of Meroe there was no political vacuum, but various political organisms immediately started to rise: Nobadia, Makuria and Alwa.

Giovanni R. Ruffini

The Bishop, the Eparch, and the King.

Old Nubian Texts from Qasr Ibrim
 [= JJP Supplement XXII]

British excavations at Qasr Ibrim have yielded numerous written sources composed in Greek, Coptic, Old Nubian, and Arabic. However, only a small portion has been published so far, among them some sixty Old Nubian texts, both literary and documents, edited between 1988 and 1991 by Gerald Michael Browne. After the field stagnated for twenty years, Ruffini took up the task initiated by Browne and produced an edition of sixty-two further Old Nubian texts, this time only documents. Documents included in this volume supplement Ruffini’s 2012 monograph (Medieval Nubia. A Social and Economic History) and provide illustration for his reconstruction of social and economic life of the Middle Nile Valley in the 12th–14th century.

Book details: hard cover, xiv + 367 pp., 69 b/w figs., indices (proper names, titles, toponyms and ethnonyms, churches, months, Greek vocabulary, Old Nubian vocabulary)
